PROLOGUE.

TH E great, the wise in every age
Have made a moral mirror of the stage ;
While to the shame and spite of tasteless fools,
Terence still reigns a classic in our schools :
But now the DRAMA fears a sad decline,
And peevish hypocrites its fall combine.
From stage, to stage, behold our author tos'd,
And, but for you, his genius crush'd and lost.
No Wilks, no Booth ! his labours to requite,
He here takes shelter, studious to delight.

But to our FARCE — It has a double aim
To honour wedlock, and put fools to shame ;
Folly and prejudice, too near a kin,
Supply pert coxcombs with eternal grin ;
So infinitely stupid is whose mirth
They'll ridicule one's very place of birth,
And cry, An honest Yorkshire Man ! a wonder !
But let them shoot their bolts, let blockheads blunder.
The glorious heroes of the Yorkshire line,
To time's last period shall in annals shine ;
While stand'ring slaves, who would these honours blot,
Shall unregarded live, — and die forgot.

Mean and unmanly is such partial spite,
Averse to nature's laws, to reason's light ;
All fellow-creatures, sure, should social be
Nay, even to brutes we owe humanity.

Our author does in virtue's cause engage,
In hopes to make her shine upon the stage ;
A modest entertainment we intend,
Willing to please, yet fearful to offend :
Indulge us therefore, if you can't command.

E P I L O G U E.

Spoken after the third night, in the summer-season,
at the HAY MARKET,

WE see with pleasure the indulgent town,
Won't let their veteran bard be quite cast down :
Spite of stage-tyrants, and their partial scoff,
He stood his trial and came nobly off.
I told him, if the ladies did befriend him,
He'd gain his point, success would sure attend him.
This little house, this season of the year,
The town so thin, might give the man some fear :
But full of hopes, he follow'd fortune's call,
Better to act it here, than not at all.
'Tis a new practice, tho' I see no reason,
To shut the stage up all the summer season.
Our very candle-snuffer's winter's pay,
Will scarce support him in a summer's day.
Why do our angry grandires vent their rage,
And persecute so fierce their once lov'd stage.
Lost to all taste of customary joys,
These old men quite forget they once were boys.
FIELDING and OATES may pray for London's may'r,
He's granted them a holiday this fair.
Then hitber bring your daughters, friends and spouses ;
We'll find diversion, so you'll find full houses.
We don't pretend the tip-top to excel,
But 'tis some kind of merit to mean well.

SCENE, an apartment in Muckworm's house.

Arbella, Combrush,

AIR I. By Signior Porpora:

ARBELLA.

GE N T L E Cupid! seek my lover,
Waft a thousand sighs from me;
All my tender fears discover,
Bid him hafte! —————
O bid him hafte, and set me free.
 Combrush!

Comb. Ma'am.Arb. No news from Gaylove yet?Comb. Not a tittle, ma'am.Arb. It quite distracts me.

Comb. And every body else, ma'am: for when you are out of humour, one may as well be out of the world. Well! this love is a strange thing; when once it gets possession of a young lady's heart, it turns her head quite topsy-turvy, and makes her out of humour with every body——I'm sure I have reason to say so.

Arb. Prithee leave your nonsense, and tell me something of Gaylove.

Comb. All I can tell you, ma'am, is that he is stark staring mad for love of you. But this confounded uncle of yours, —————

Arb. What of him?

Comb. Has just received news of the arrival of a rich country 'squire out of Yorkshire; which country 'squire is cut out for your husband.

Arb. They that cut a husband out for me, shall cut him out of better stuff, I assure you.

6 THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

A I R II. In vain, dear Cloe, etc.

*Shall I stand still and tamely see
Such Smithfield bargains made of me?*

*Is not my heart my own?
I hate, I scorn their clownish 'squire,
Nor lord, or duke, do I desire,
But him I love alone.*

Comb. Well said, ma'am; I love a woman of spirit.

A I R III. Hark! away, 'tis the merry ton'd horn.

*Why should women so much be control'd?
Why should men with our rights make so bold?
Let the battle 'twixt sexes be try'd,
We shall soon prove the strongest side.*

*Then stand to your arms,
And trust to your charms,
Soon whining, and pining,
The men will pursue;
But if you grow tame,
They'll make you their game,
And prove perfect tyrants
If once they subdue.*

S C E N E, A Street near the house.

GAYLOVE and SLANGO.

Gayl. No way to get at her?

Slango. The devil a bit, Sir; old Muckworm has cut off all communication: but I have worse news to tell you yet.

Gayl. That's impossible.

Slango. Your mistress is to be married to another, and that quickly.

Gayl. Married! you surprize me; to whom?

Slango. To 'squire Sapscull, a Yorkshire gentleman, of a very great estate.

Gayl. Confusion! can she be so false? to Sapscull! I know him well, of Sapscull-Hall—I was born within a mile and an half of the place; his father is the greatest rogue in the country, the very man I am now suing for what my late brother mortgag'd to him, when I was a student at Cambridge. Is he not content to with-hold my right from me, but he must seek to rob me of the only happiness I desire in life?

THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

A I R IV. The charms of Florimel.

I.

*My charming Arabell,
To make thee mine secure,
What would I not endure?
'Tis past the power of tongue to tell,
The love I bear my Arabell.*

II.

*No human force shall quell
My passion for my dear,
Can love be too sincere?
I'd sooner take of life farewell
Than of my dearest Arabell.*

Is there no way to prevent this match? you were not us'd to be thus barren of invention.

Slango. Nor am I now, Sir; your humble servant has invented already,—and such a scheme!

Gayl. How! which way, dear Slango?

Slango. Why thus,——I must personate Arbella, (with this sweet face) and you her uncle, under which disguises we may intercept the country 'squire, and get his credentials; equipt with which,—I leave you to guess the rest.

Gayl. Happy invention! success attend it.

Slango. I can't say Amen; though I'd do any thing to serve you. Do you know the result, Sir? no less than the forfeiture of your dear liberty. Have you forgot the song of the Dog and the bone?

---

[N. B. The following song is taken from Mr. Wordsdale's Cure for a Scold, inserted here, by his permission, and very proper to be sung in this place, by Slango, for the future.]

Tune, When the bright god of day.

I.

*Whoe'er to a wife
Is link'd for his life,
Is plac'd in most wretched condition;
Tho' plagu'd with her tricks,
Like a blister she sticks,
And death is his only physician.
And death is his only physician.*

THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

II.

*To trifle and toy,
May give a man joy,
When summon'd by love or by beauty ;
But, where is the bleſſ in
Our conjugal kissing,
When paſſion is prompted by duty,
When paſſion is prompted by duty.*

III.

*The cur who poſſeſſ'd
Of mutton the beſt,
A bone he could leave at his pleaſure :
But, if to his tail
'Tis ty'd, without fail
He's harraſſ'd and plagu'd beyond meaſure,
He's harraſſ'd and plagu'd beyond meaſure.*

Gayl. I am now of a contrary opinion : vice looks so hateful, and virtue so amiable in my eye, especially as 'tis the ready road to true happiness, I am resolv'd to pursue its paths. A regular life, and a good wife for me.

A I R V. Answer to the above song.

To the same tune.

I.

*That man who for life,
Is bleſſ'd in a wife,
Is ſure in a happy condition :
Go things how they will,
She sticks by him ſtill,
She's comforter, friend, physician,
She's etc.*

II.

*Pray where is the joy.
To trifle and toy,
Yet dreadſome diſaſter from beauty ?
But ſweet is the bliſſ
Of a conjugal kiſſ,
Where love mingleſ pleasure with duty,
Where, etc.*

THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

III.

*One extravagant whore,
Shall cost a man more,
Than twenty good wifes who are saving ;
For wives they will spare,
That their children may share,
But whores are eternally craving.
But, etc.*

[Exeunt.]

S C E N E, Another Street.

SAPSCULL and BLUNDER, staring about.

Sapf. Wuns-lent! what a mortal big place this same London is ! ye mun ne'er see end on't, for sure ;—housen upon housen, folk upon folk—one would admire where they did grow all of 'em.

Blund. Ay, master, and this is nought to what you'll see an by, and ye go to Tower ye mun see great hugeous ships as tall as housen : then ye mun go to playhousen, and there be no less nor six of 'em, a hopeful company, 'o my conscience ! there you'll see your comical tragedies, and your uproars, and roararibusses, and hear Fardinello, that fings Solfa better nor our minister choir-men : and more nor that, ye mun ha' your choice of the prattiest lasses, ye e'er set een on.

Sapf. By th' mess and I'll be some body among 'em——so I will—but how mun we find out this same Sir Penurious Muckworm ?

Blund. Ye mun look to letter for that.

Sopf. Letter says, G-r-o-z Groz v-e-ve né-r-neer Grozve-ner square : but how mun we know where this same Grozve-ner square is ?

Blund. Why ye mun ask ostler for that, he'll set you right for sure : for your London ostlers are wiser by half than our country justasses.

Sapf. Ay, Blunder, ev'ry thing's fine in London.

A I R. VI. London is a fine town.

I.

“ O Landon is a dainty place,
“ A great and gallant city,
“ For all the streets are pav'd with gold,
“ And all the folks are witty.

10 THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

II.

" And there's your lords and ladies fine,
" That ride in coach and six,
" That nothing drink but claret wine,
" And talk of politics.

III.

" And there's your beaux, with powder'd cloaths,
" Be-daub'd from head to chin;
" Their pocket-holes adorn'd with gold,
" But not one soufe within.

IV.

" And there's the English actor goes
" With many a hungry belly,
" While heaps of gold are forc'd, God wot,
" On Signior Farrinelli.

V.

" And there's your dames, of dainty frames,
" With skins as white as milk,
" Dreft every day, in garments gay,
" Of satin, and of silk.

VI.

" And if your mind be so inclin'd,
" To have them in your arms,
" Pull out a hand-songe—purse of gold,
They can't resist its charms.

To them Gaylove as Muckworm.

Gayl. Welcome in London, dear 'squire Sapsfull. I hope your good father's well, and all at Sapsfull-Hall.

Sapsf. Did ye e'er hear the like, Blunder? this old gentleman knows me as well as I knows myself. [To Blunder aside.

Blund. Ay, master, your Londoneers knows every thing.

Gayl. I had letters of your coming, and was resolv'd to meet you.

Sapsf. Pray, Sir, who may you be, an I may be so bold?

Gayl. My name, Sir, is Muckworm.

Sapsf. What, Sir Penurious Muckworm?

Gayl. So they call me.

Sapsf. Sir, if your name be Sir Penurious Muckworm, my name is Samuel Sapsfull jun. Esq; son of Sir Samuel Sapsfull of Sapsfull-Hall i'th' East-Riding o' Yorkshire.

THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN. 22

Gayl. Sir, I am no stranger to your family and merit; for which reason I sent for you to town, to marry my niece with £6000*l.* fortune, and a pretty girl in the bargain.

Blund. Look ye there, master! [Aside to Sapscull.]

Sapf. Hold your peace, you blockhead, [Aside to Blunder.]

Gayl. But how may I be sure that you are the very 'squire Sapscull I sent for. Have you no letters, no credentials?

Sapf. Open the portmantell, Blunder—yes, Sir, I ha' brought all my tackle with me. Here, Sir, is a letter from father;—[Gives a letter.]—And here, Sir, are deeds and writings, to shew what you mun ha' to trust to: and here, Sir, is marriage-settlement, sign'd by father, in fit case young gentle-woman and I likes one another.

Gayl. Sir, she can't chuse but admire so charming a person: There is but one obstacle that I know of.

Sapf. What may that be, an I may be so bold?

Gayl. Your habit, Sir; your habit.

Sapf. Why, Sir, 'twas counted wondrous fine in our country last parlementeering time.

Gayl. O, Sir, but it's old-fashion'd now, and my niece loves every thing to the tip top of the mode. But if you'll go along with me, I'll equip you in an instant.

Muck. Come, there's a good girl; don't be in the pouts, now.

Comb. I think it's enough to put any young lady in the pouts, to deny her the man she likes, and force her to marry a great loobily Yorkshire tike. In short, Sir, my mistress don't like him, and won't have him—nay, I don't like him, and tell you flat and plain she shan't have him.

Muck. Shan't have him, Mrs. Snapdragon!

Comb. No, shan't have him, Sir—if I were she, I'd see who shou'd force me to marry against my will.

Muck. Was ever such an impudent hussy; but I'll send you a packing. Get out of my house, you saucy baggage.

Arb. Sir, tho' you have the care of my estate, you have no command over my servants; I am now your ward, not your slave; if you use me thus, you'll constrain me to chuse another guardian.

Muck. (Aside.) A gipsey! who taught her this cunning? I must hasten this match, or lose 1000l. by the bargain. (To Arb.) What a bustle is here with a peevish love-sick girl? pray, child, have you learnt Cupid's catechism? do you know what love is?

14 THE HONEST YORKSHIRE-MAN.

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Sir, one 'squire Sapsfull out of Yorkshire, desires to speak with you.

Muck. I'm glad he's come—desire him to walk in.

Servant goes out, and returns with Gaylour dress'd in Sapsfull's cloaths.

Gayl. Sir, an your name be Sir Penurious Muckworm.

Muck. Sir, I have no other; may I crave yours.

Gayl. Samuel Sapsfull, jun. Esq; at your lordship's service.

Muck. A very mannerly towardly youth, and a comely one, I affuse you. (To Arbella.)

Gayl. Pray, Sir, an I may be so bold, which of these two pratty lasses, is your niece, and my wife, that mun be.

Arb. What a brute is this! before I'd have such a wretch for a husband, I'd die ten thousand deaths.

Muck. Which do you like best, Sir?

Gayl. Marry, an I were to chuse, I'd take 'em both.

Muck. Very courtly, indeed. I see the 'squire's a wag.

Comb. Both! I'll affuse you, saucebox; the worst is too good for you.

A I R X. Gilly-flow'r, gentle rosemary.

I.

Why how now, Sir Clown, dost set up for a wit?

Gilly-flow'r, gentle rosemary;

If here you should wed, you're as certainly bit:

As the dew it flies over the mulberry tree.

II.

If such a fine lady to wife you should take,

Gilly-flow'r, gentle rosemary:

Your heart, heads, and horns, shall as certainly ake,

As the dew it flies over the mulberry tree.

Muck. Infusserable assurance, affront a gentleman in my house! nevermind her, Sir; she's none of my niece, only a pert slut of a chambermaid.

Gayl. A chamber jade! Lord, lord, how brave you keep your maidens here in London! wuns-lent, she's as fine as our lady mayoreess.

Muck. Ay, her mistress spoils her; but follow me, Sir, and I'll warrant you we'll manage her and her mistress too.

Sapf. I means to be quicker yet, ay marry, and make thee quick too, afore I ha' done with thee.

Slang. I protest, Sir, you put me to such a nonplus, I don't know what to say.

Sapf. Ne'er heed; parson shall teach thee what to say. For my part, I have con'd my lesson afore-hand.

Slang. But will you love me?

Sapf. Love thee? Lord, lord, I loves thee better than I does.

my Bay Filley ; did you ne'er see her, forsooth ? od, she's a dainty tit, and sure I am.—I loves her better nor I do now'n father.—Blunder, run and fet a parson.

Slang. Mr. Blunder may save himself that trouble, Sir, I have provided one already.

Saps. Why then, let's make haste, dear sweet honey, for I do long till it's over. [Exeunt.

Enter Gaylove and Arbella.

I.

Gayl. *Thou only darling I admire,
My heart's delight, my soul's desire;
Possessing thee I've greater store,
Than king to be of India's shore,*

II.

*Kor every woman were there three,
And in the world no man but me;
I'd singe you from all the rest,
To sweeten life, and make me blest.*

Arb. Well ! I never was so deceiv'd in my life ! how could you clown it so naturally !

Gayl. What is it I would not do, for your dear sake ? but, I intreat you, let's lay hold of this opportunity, and put it out of fortune's power ever to divide us.

Arb. What would you have me to do ?

Gayl. Leave all to me. I have left Combrush to amuse your uncle, while a fellow collegiate of mine, who is in orders, waits in the next room to finish the rest.

Arb. Do what you will with me : for, in short, I don't know what to do with myself.

A I R XVI. The nymph that undoes me.

I.

Arb. *Let prudes and coquets their intentions conceal ;
With pride, and with pleasure, the truth I reveal ;
You're all I can wish, and all I desire ;
So fix'd is my flame, it ne'er can expire.
So fix'd is my flame, etc.*

II.

*Gayl. Let rakes, and let libertines, revel and range,
Poffeſſ'd of ſuch treasure, what mortal would change?
You're the ſource of my hope, the ſpring of my joy,
A fountain of bliſs that never can cloy.
A fountain of bliſs, etc.*

[Gaylove and Arbella together.
How tranſporting is the pleasure,
When two hearts like ours unite?
When our goodneſſ knows no meaſure,
And no bounds our dear delight.

[Exeunt.Enter Muckworm and Combrusb.

Muck. Well; I forgive you: this laſt action has made amends for all. I find a chamber-maid is prime minister in matrimonial affairs——and you ſay, they are quite loving?

Comb. Fond, fond, Sir, as two turtles! but I beg you wou'd not diſturb 'em.

Muck. By no means; let 'em have their love out, pretty fools! I ſhall be glad, however, to fee ſome of their little fondneſſes: but tell me ſeriously, how do you like the 'ſquire?

Comb. Oh! of all things, Sir; and ſo does my miſtress, I affiſſe you.

Muck. How that ſcoundrel Gaylove will be diſappointed

Comb. He'll be ready to hang himſelf, (about her neck.)

[Aſide.

Muck. They'll make ballads upon him.

Comb. I have made one already, and will ſing it if you please.

Muck. With all my heart.

*A country 'squire was to wea
This fair and dainty dame ;
But such contraries in a bed,
Wou'd be a monstrous shame :
To see a lady bright and gay,
Of fortune, and of charms,
So shamefully be thrown away,
Into a looby's arms.*

III.

*The lovers, thus distractted,
It set 'em on a plot ;
Which lately has been acted,
And ————— shall I tell you what ?
The gentleman disguis'd himself
Like to the country 'squire,
Deceived the old mischievous elf,
And got his heart's desire.*

Muck. I don't like this song.

Comb. Then you don't like truth, Sir.

Muck. What d'ye mean to affront me ?

Comb. Would you have me tell a lye, Sir ?

Muck. Get out of my house you baggage.

Comb. I only stay to take my mistress with me ; and see, here she comes.

To them Gaylove and Arbella.

Muck. So, Sir ; you have deceived me ; but I'll provide you a wedding-suit ; a fine long Chancery suit, before ever you touch a penny of her fortune.

Gayl. Sir, if you dare embazzle a farthing, I'll provide you with a more lasting garment ; a curious stone-doublet : you have met with your match, Sir ; I have studied the law, ay, and practis'd it too.

Muck. The devil take you, and the law together.——

To them Sapscull and Slango.

—Hey day ! who in the name of wonder have we got here ?

Gayl. Only 'squire Sapscull, his bride, and boobily man.

Slango. Come my dear ! hold up your head like a man, and let him see what an elegant husband I have got.

Blund. Ay; and let him see what a dainty wife my master has gotten.

Sapf. Here's a pow'r of fine folk, sweet honey wife! pray, who may they be?

Slang. This, Sir, is Sir Penurious Muckworm—

Sapf. No honey! I fear you are mistaken. Sir Penurious is another guise sort of a man; an I mistake not, he's more liker yon same gentleman.

Blund. Ay, so he is, master.

Slang. That same gentleman was Sir Penurious Muckworm, some time ago, but now he's chang'd to George Gaylove, Esq;

Gayl. At your service, Sir.

Sapf. And who's yon fine lady?

Gayl. My wife, Sir, and that worthy knight's niece.

Sapf. Your wife! and that knight's niece! why who a murrain nave I gotten then?

Gayl. My man, Slango; and I wish you much joy.

Sapf. Your man, Slango! what have I married a man, then?

Slang. If you don't like me, my dear, we'll be divorc'd this minute.

Sapf. My dear, a murrain take such dears! where's my writings? I'll ha' you all hang'd for cheats.

Gayl. You had better hang yourself for a fool. Go home, child, go home, and learn more wit. There's your deed of settlement; but as for the writings, they happen to be mine, and kept fraudulently from me by your father, to whom they were mortgaged by my late brother. The estate has been clear these three years. Send your father to me and I'll talk to him. This is but tit for tat, young gentleman. Your father wanted to get my estate from me; and I have got the wife he intended for you. All's fair, Sir.

Mack. I say all's foul, and a damin'd cheat; and so I'll make it appear. [Exit in a rage.]

Gayl. Do your worst, Sir, you can't unmarry us.

A I R XIX. Set by the AUTHOR.

Arb. Now fortune is past its severest,
My passion, of mortal's sincerest,
Kind heaven has repaid in my dearest;
What gift can it greater bestow? Low v. II.

Gayl. True love shall thro' destiny guide us,
Still constant whatever betide us,
There's nothing but death shall divide us,
So faithful a fondness we'll shew.

BOTH,

*By Cupid and Hymen united,
By dangers no longer affrighted,
We'll live in each other delighted,
The greatest of blessings below.*

Sapf. What mun I do? I mun ne'er see father's face again.

Gayl. Never fear, 'squire, I'll set all to rights; tho' your father's my enemy, I'm not yours: my house shall be your home, till I have reconcil'd you to your father; and for the honour of Yorkshire, I'll see you shan't be abus'd here.

Sapf. Say ye so, Sir? then I do wish you much joy with all my heart.

Blund. Ay, and so does Blunder too.

Sapf. Well, sin I see you be so happy in a wife, I'll not be long without one, I assure you.

Gayl. You can't be happier than I wish you.
